I'm glad to see you,

Welcome to my Portfolio

2020

Hello,

I am Andy Rajoelisoa, a digital art director and designer. I truly believe in aesthetics to craft delightful visuals with a strong emotional link. Attentive to detail, I consider my eye for design as an asset.

MNMA Studio Redesign

ORIGINAL WEBSITE →

During my spare time, I wanted to completely redesign a website or a brand. I discovered MNMA Studio, an architecture studio in Brazil, and their beautiful photographs. However their website was not in their advantage : it looked unfinished, had bad UX, and lacked contrast and brand elements. That's why I decided to go for a full website redesign. While I was at it, I took time to recreate their brand identity (logo, icons, etc) and their website. I thought about a refreshing web experience focusing on architecture imagery and giving typography an important role. Fonts I used : Kaftan Serif and Suisse Int'l. All photographs in this project are from Andre Klotz.

Logotype, layout, icons.

BRAND IDENTITY

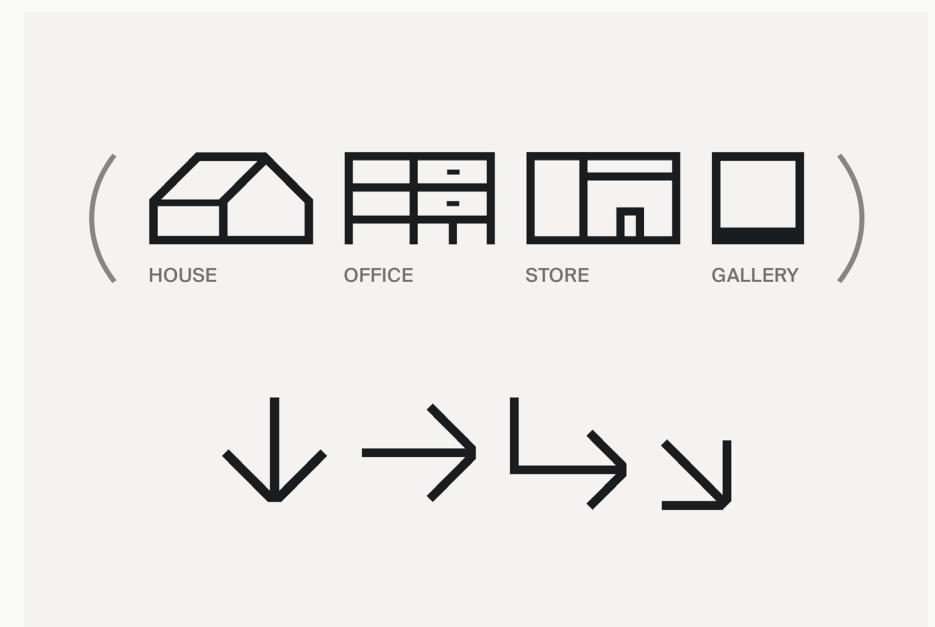

Base logo and colors :

Simple shape logo with a “swiss-style” font. The geometrical look emphasizes architecture builds and MNMA’s minimalist style.

I created 4 icons representing the types of project they are involved in. A more efficient way to classify their projects and stay in line with the new logo.

Home Page :

IDENTITY + WEB ART DIRECTION

A website design focused on big typography and architecture imagery. I played a lot with the movement of elements by offsetting, shifting, overlapping but also by pairing different type (serif and non-serif). All put together, I tried to balance the design and create a captivating experience.

“Work” page (project list) :

I designed two types of navigation for the project list page : an horizontal and a vertical scroll. Users are able to chose what type of navigation they want. In fact, they are “arranging” the website to their preference in comparison to interior design.

OUR CURATION PROCESS

During the curation process and along the building development, as some natural weathering occurred on the floor because of expansion of materials, it was decided to adopt a sort of Kintsugi technique of filling the cracks with a special golden mixture to honour the fact. The toilet sink is also a handmade process of "curling" a limestone and applying flames to it, to create a very particular rough texture.

The occasional lamp is composed of PVC original examples. Inside, the alumina test tends to develop a monolithic design with a clear view of the sky not only for illumination, but also for a playful contact with nature, weather, the passage of time and to have some human scale perspective, reminding us that we share the same sky. It is inspired and celebrates some works of artist James Turrell.

TRANSIDISCIPLINARY ARCHITECTURE STUDIO

ABOUT MNMA (STUDIO)

OFFICE ↓

MNMA studio sets up a trans-disciplinary architecture studio that develops projects with sensitivity —articulating the elements in a simple and intimate way. We have the purpose of integrating disciplines with a strong plastic appeal —without restrictions to the use of materials and constructive techniques— to develop projects with diversity of scales, from temporary facilities to urban interventions.

We believe in processes that do not speak of form but rather of sensations, from the ephemeral to the permanent, that way, the architecture surpasses the simple answer in terms of material comfort and above all it fulfills its greater task when it does not become an individual activity.

Ad Astra Lab

Experience

WEBSITE FOR THE TEST →

INTRODUCTION VIDEO →

This is a project made at École Estienne in october 2020. We created Ad Astra Lab, a team of 3 scientists (Kamil Izaret, Axel Anastacio and me) who pretend to be able to find the planet that suits someone best through a personality test of 10 questions. Based on the results, we could generate a planet for the user but also a dedicated humanoid made to live and survive on it. In fact, each planet has its own corresponding extraterrestrial humanoid. Here's my part of the creation and production. You can take on the test (on mobile preferably) with the link provided (developed and designed by Kamil Izaret).

3D/2D animation

INTRODUCTION VIDEO

VIMEO LINK →

For the opening of the experience, I created a 2-minute animated video introducing Ad Astra's manifesto, our promise and what it will consist of. I created everything using After Effects and Blender mixing 2D and 3D elements. Some of the videos in the background were taken from stock websites and I retouched them to match the art direction. The voice-over and instrumental were made by Axel Anastacio.

PLANETS AND HUMANOIDS

At the end of the video, a QR code appeared and we asked our testers to scan a QR code that led them to the personality test. When taking on the tests, they could get one of the 12 different planets and humanoids. Planets were attributed depending on the dominant symbol result they get. For example, a triangle symbol result generates a triangular planet. Here are the planets I produced and their respective “creatures”.

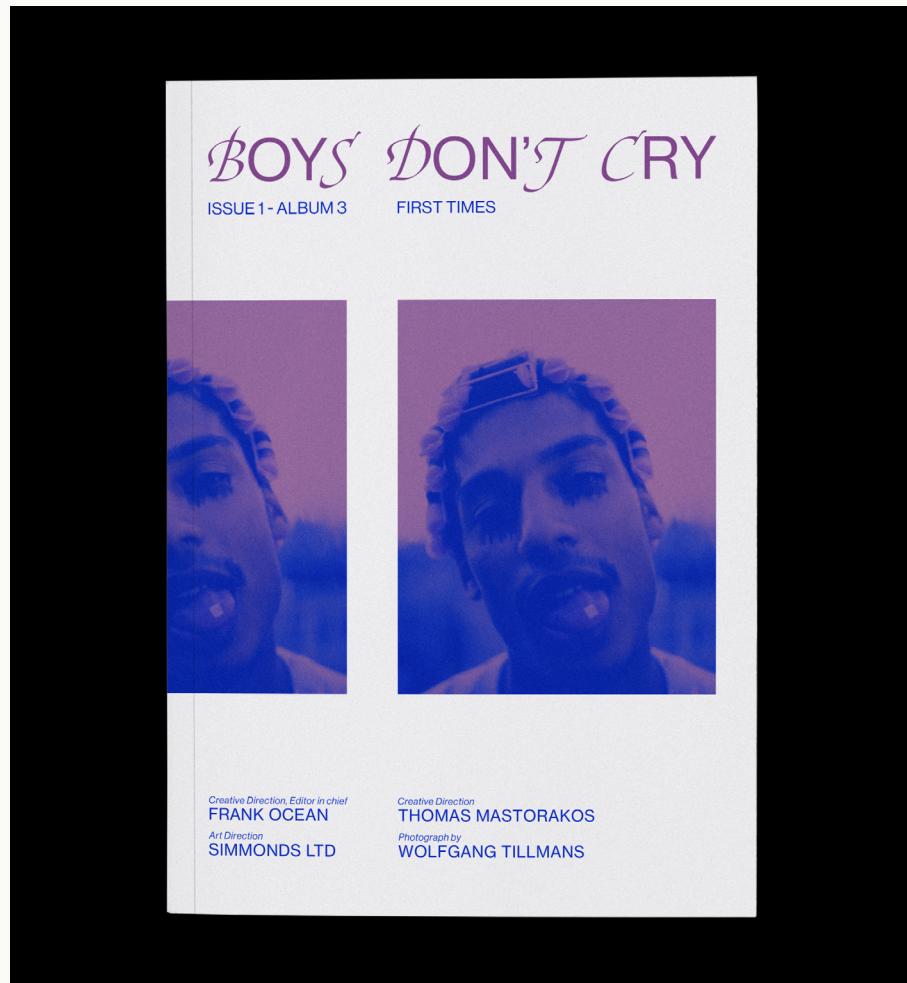

Boys Don't Cry Magazine

INSTAGRAM POST 1

INSTAGRAM POST 2

Editorial Concept for “Boy’s Don’t Cry - First Times issue”: a magazine published by the artist Frank Ocean during August 2016 for the release of his long-awaited album “Blonde”. The original piece is very well crafted with rich photography. Its content is mainly about cars and fashion but it is also a glimpse of Frank’s intimacy. I wanted to go for a different approach for this redesign : I didn’t consider the whole content and focused my attention on the enigmatic title of the magazine. And also a particular photographic series inside the magazine. Click the links if you want to see the related posts.

Magazine cover :

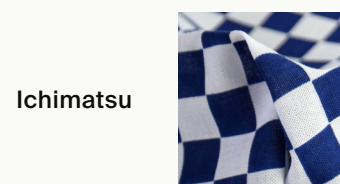

The first design is the front cover. The combination of purple and blue emphasize passion and mystery because of the uncertainty of “Boys Don’t Cry”: no one really knew what to expect from the project before its release. We only knew the title. I ironically illustrated the title : a picture of a crying boy in the middle attracting the reader’s curiosity on a mystery trip. The typographic choice : fancy letter pairings covering an hidden personality, just like Frank who doesn’t show up much to the public neither and on social media and stays discreet.

Photographic series : 2 spreads.

By definition, a “Fishtail” occurs when a vehicle’s losing control and the driver loses the car’s handling ability. In this way, the photographs are arranged in an unusual checkerboard. This checkered pattern, going top and bottom, represents the car’s behaviour which is unpredictable (corresponding to Frank Ocean) during a fishtail. It also refers to racing flags and Japanese culture with “Ichimatsu” a traditional kabuki pattern (see opposite).

“Fishtail” is a photographic series taken by Michael Mayren focusing on Tokyo and its cars. A metropolis that evokes purple and blue with their variety of flowers : Sakura, Shibazakura or Nemophila. These plants, and their colors, are a real part of Japanese culture.

INSTAGRAM TEASER →

Also at MMI Bordeaux, we were asked to redesign a website of our choice (visually, with desktop and mobile) within 5 days. I decided to pick La Maison Européenne de la Photographie's website, a museum located in Paris. I had the chance to take on the role of web art director during this time period and I could express my design taste. The goal was to bring a better UX and reaffirm a singular visual identity while staying true to the place. The graphic style is based on the initial logo and highlights the photo frame. This proposal made me practice art direction, digital design and animation. You can see the complete project on Behance. I also produced a "project teaser" on Instagram.

PDF PRESENTATION \(IN FRENCH\) →

During my studies at MMI Bordeaux, my group and I had the chance to be briefed on a digital campaign by the client : mymuesli, a German muesli brand. We only had 4 days by groups of 7 to develop a 100% digital strategy, make the brand a premium market leader in France, and promote ultra-personalization. If you want to see the full project presentation (analysis, statements, strategy,...), click on the link at the left. Here, I will showcase my creative contribution to the campaign.

For the oral presentation, I wanted to start in a memorable way. To me, the best way to introduce the project was : motion design. (click the images)

Click on the corresponding thumbnails to watch the animations.

To make it short, based on our statements, we noticed that the French population felt guilty of being “gourmand”. Our goal was to help them get rid of this discomfort by promoting muesli : a loving and healthy meal. This is how we came up with #myresolutions. To introduce this special campaign, we decided to go for a short motion video with new colours.

We wanted to launch #myresolutions during the 2020 new year's period : if people didn't stick to their resolutions, mymuesli would offer them free mueslis in exchange so they can avoid the blame. We spread the campaign out through numerous mediums : social media, print, blog article, influencers, mobile website.

Mobile interface prototype :

Print + Social Media :

ON VOUS OFFRE VOTRE ABONNEMENT
À LA SALLE DE SPORT
EN MUESLI

mymuesli
#MYRESOLUTIONS

At the end of the consumers' process, we invited them to order their gifted mueslis on the mobile site. And guess what ? We thought about a redesigned mobile experience exclusively for the campaign. It was all about the ultra-personalization tool : "Le Mixer". Moreover, they can share their mueslis combinations and recipes. Click the image to see the full mobile experience.

Once they ordered, the clients participating in the campaign receive their mueslis in a unique packaging. We designed the latter by combining the #myresolutions color palette and comforting quotes written in the middle of the box. This was in line with our main goal : free them of guilt.

"Libéré, Délivré" is also a reference to a past collaboration between mymuesli and the "Frozen" movie.

ULTRANOIR

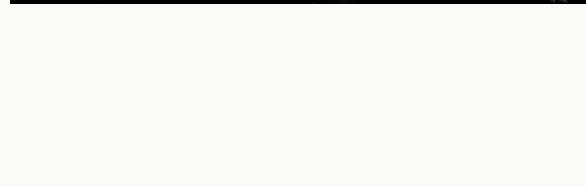

VIMEO LINK →

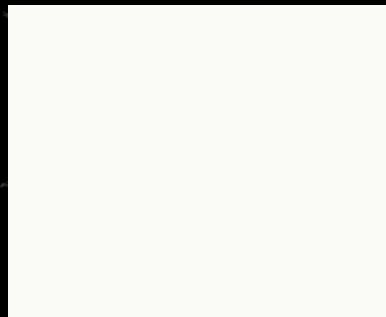

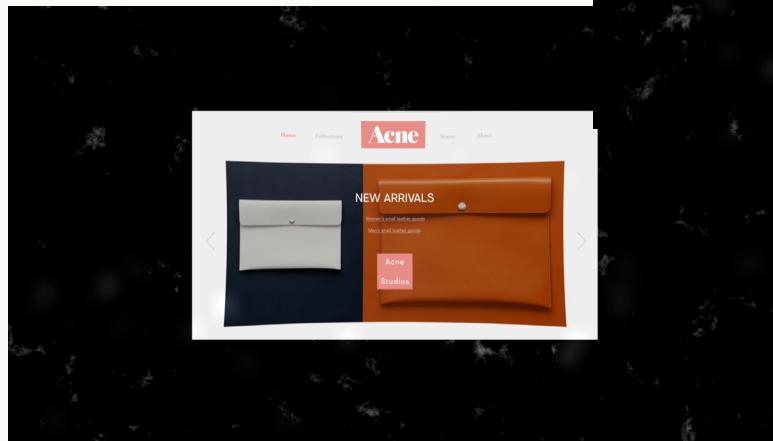

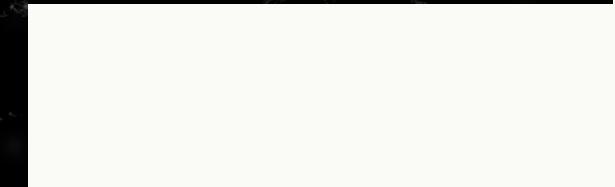

In early 2020 (before COVID-19 ruins everything), I was looking for an internship and discovered “ultranoir”, a digital agency. Amazed by their work, I knew I had to do an uncommon and striking application to fully catch their attention. I decided to spend some days creating an animated resume. Storyboard, script, animation and sound design were involved and indeed done by myself. Unfortunately, they couldn’t take me but it was a great practice!

In order to be unique and specific: I thought about transposing their identity. Heavily inspired by their website, I created a visual and sound atmosphere similar to space with a touch of elegance. I kept the same fonts from the website. The script was a simple, but effective, cover letter : who I am, what I want, why they should choose me, what I'd like to do now and in the future.

During summer 2019, I wanted to begin something new. My idea was to be able to share any creative content I could possibly imagine to a community, whether it is a massive project or a quick concept, but all in one place. Therefore, I decided to create the instagram account : @andyarchives where I post any creative piece I do. What motivated me was to hone my communication, the presentation of the feed and the design of the stories. Posting regularly keeps me in constant activity. Thanks to this, I am able to diversify my work. Here is a selection of stories and videos exclusively made to carry my communication. You can click the videos for more.

Web design Concepts

INSTAGRAM →

Along with the making of @andyarchives, I obviously started designing several interfaces, from art direction, web design and animated interactions to responsive. These designs allowed me to improve my graphic identity and taste but also my animation skills (After Effects, XD). My work is heavily influenced by fashion, luxury and american culture which I'm highly interested in. All these pieces are on Instagram. Here is a complete presentation.

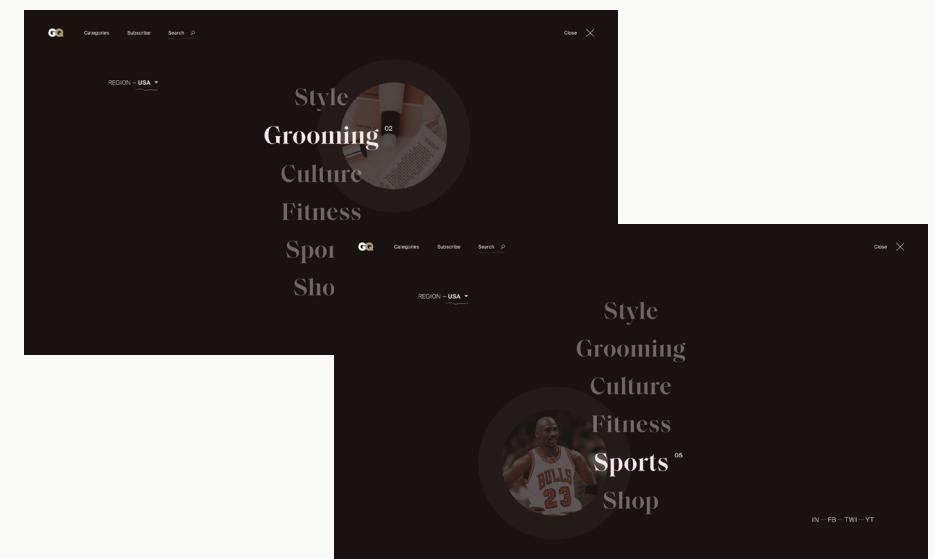

GQ MAGAZINE ARTICLE

To practice more, I wanted to design and animate a menu. I chose GQ's website, a magazine dealing about fashion, culture, beauty, etc.. Home page inspired by this article. Minimal and elegant design in line with the ideal lifestyle that the magazine advocates. This is a complete navigation from article page to menu interactions.

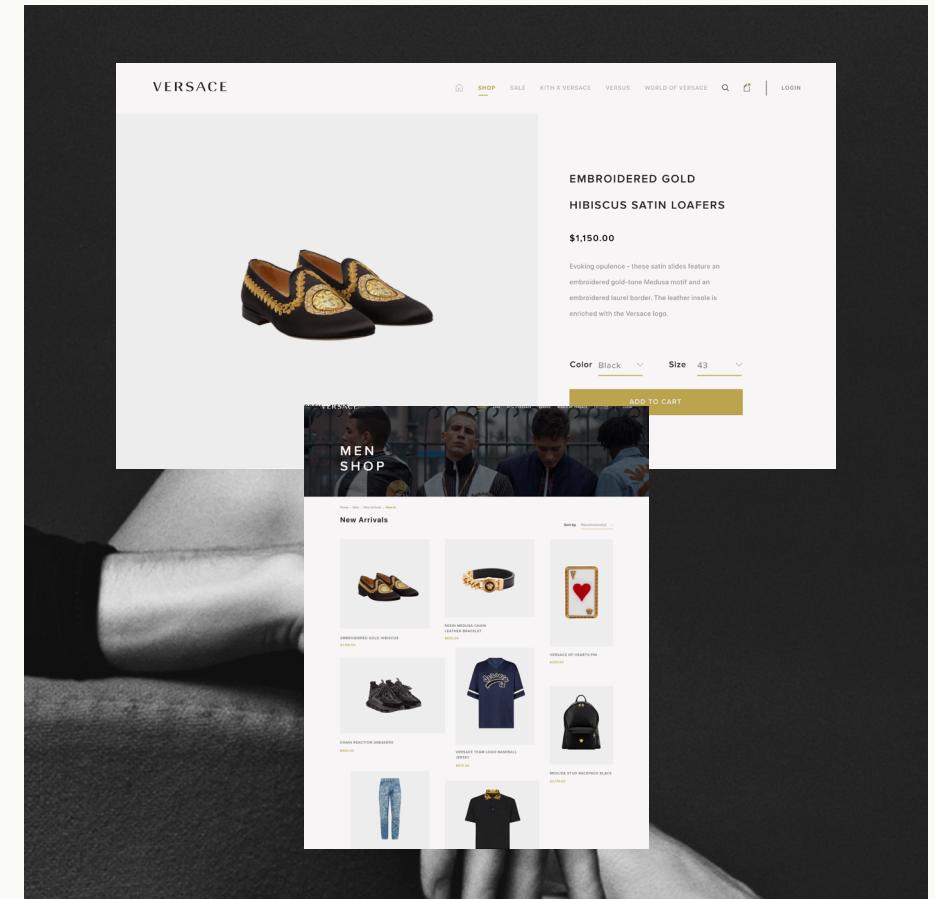

VERSACE E-SHOP

The animation :

Interactive design concept for the luxury brand Versace : I redesigned the men catalog page and the product page. Then, I animated the interaction from the catalog to the product page.

MYMUESLI MOBILE

INSTAGRAM POST →GO TO FULL PROJECT →Mobile animation :

Please refer to the project mymuesli Campaign to know more. For this ad project, I had to design and prototype the mobile experience to promote the personalization tool. After the delivery date, I wanted to practice animation and imagine an interaction when the consumer arrives and starts to compose his/her muesli combo.

Mobile prototype :

GOLF le FLEUR x LACOSTE

INSTAGRAM POST →

A conceptual landing page showcasing the past collaboration between 2 clothing brands : GOLF Le FLEUR and Lacoste. One of my favorite artists : Tyler, The Creator created GOLF le FLEUR. Tyler has an unique personality that reflects on his work. Through this, I wanted to share how goflefleur.com should have appeared during the collab (according to my vision).

The design :

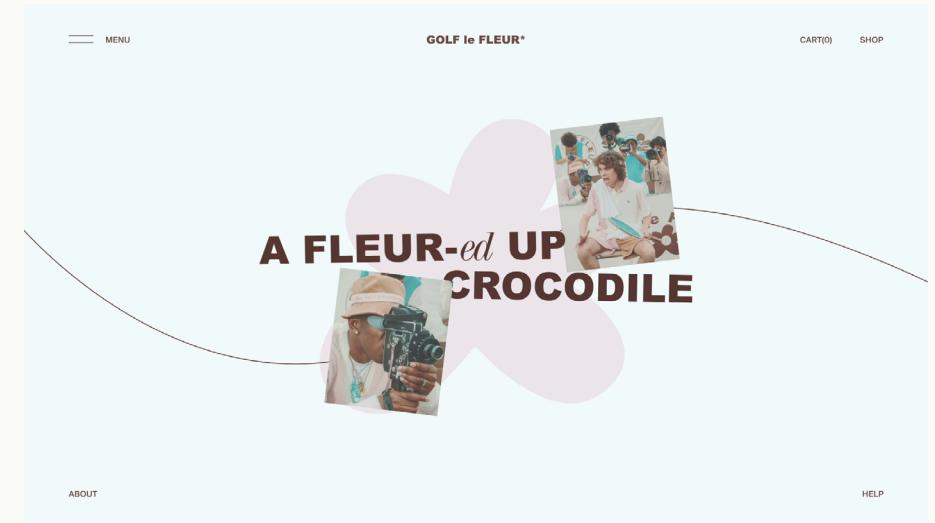

For this design, I kept the original color palette used for the collaboration : pale blue, pastel pink and brown. Note that brown is Tyler's most worn color. I used Arial, like the original logo, combined with serif typeface giving the premium touch from Lacoste. The flower in the background represents GOLF le FLEUR's logo. The lines on the side emphasize the floral style : they symbolize stems attached to the flower.

The animation :

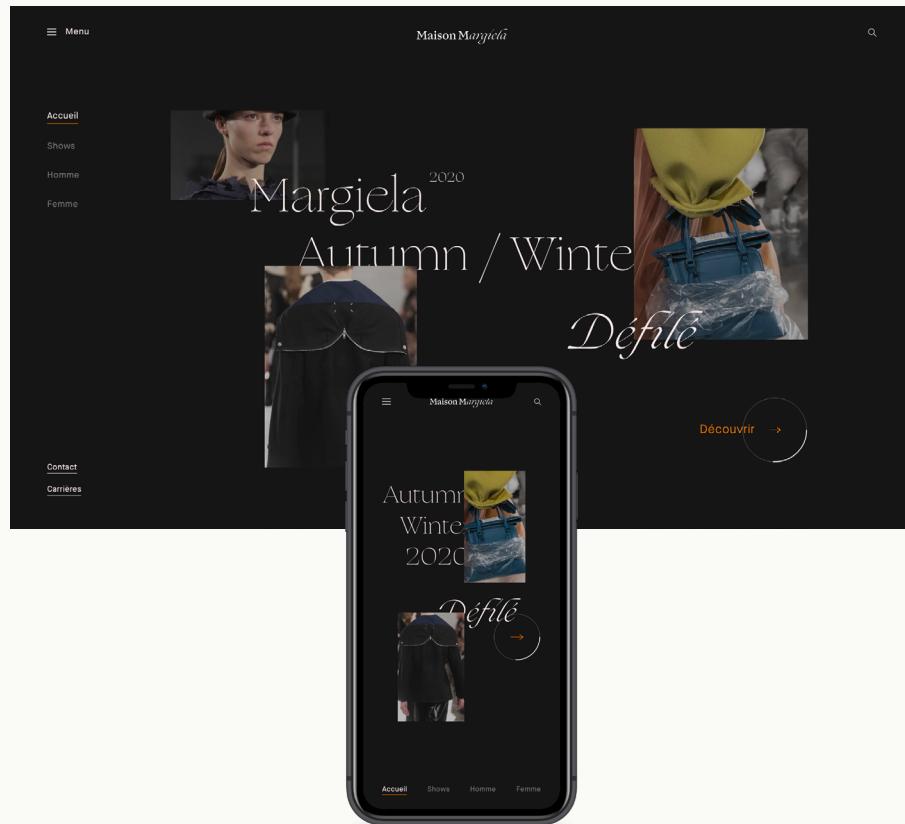

Firstly, there is a quick loading screen showing the collab's logo. For the page transition, I wanted to play around with the flower. The stems start growing from the sides while the flower blossoms in the middle to finally connect together. The photos appear like petals when the stems cross them.
